Proposition to Repeal the State Bank Tax

Is Down for Defeat So It Is Said.

POPULISTS OPPOSED.

They Want More Money but Desire National Money.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—[Special.]—The great question of the repeal of the tax on state bank circulation, the Meyer bill to provide for the seigniorage and protecting it by bonds, the bills favored by Mr. Bland and his co-laborers, going somewhat further than the former, the Sperry bill to establish a bureau of interstate banks, the various labor bills from Mr. McGinn's committee and the always interesting measures reported by Mr. Hatch from the committee on agriculture. Of the first named it was stated at the start by the best judges of the temper of the house that it was down for defeat; that it was, in fact, one of those measures which many had to seem to be in favor of, while very few really wanted it. It was expected by the Democrats that it was true, but only 150 members were present, and half of them were the reverse of enthusiastic. It is probably the only measure now pending for increasing the currency to which the Populists are much more strongly opposed than the Republicans. They want more money, it is true, but they are very particular as to having it national money. With all the Republicans and all the Populists opposed to it and half the Democrats hostile or indifferent no prophet was required to foretell its fate.

State Banks.
The bill by Mr. Richards of Ohio to forbid contracts requiring payment in gold has so far excited little more than a good natured smile among the Republicans and such Democrats as vote with them on financial questions. It would at first view seem strange that the Populists should also ridicule such a bill, but they are quite consistent in it, saying that gold is nothing but a commodity and should be treated as such and dealt in with the same freedom as wheat or corn.

The Sperry bill provides for a national bureau and central redemption agency for state banks, the United States to have supervision and to hold and certify to the sufficiency of the bonds before any state bank can issue bills of its own, but not guarantee the redemption of the bills as it does of those of the national bank. In case, however, any state bank should fail to redeem its bills on demand this act provides that the central bureau shall at once act as a receiver, sell the bonds directed by that bank for whatever they will bring in open market and pay the bill holders pro rata. Such men as Mr. Walker, General Grosvenor, Mr. Dingley and other Republicans who deal largely with financial questions will scarcely take the time to even talk about the possibility of such a scheme. In short, it may be said with confidence that that part of the Democratic platform relating to the tax on state banks has gone into innocuous desuetude.

The Tariff Question.
It is a curious fact that the appeals from all over the country for speedy action on the tariff, which had almost ceased for awhile, were renewed with increased vigor immediately after the late municipal elections, and now both senators and members are bombarded more furiously than ever. Almost every Democratic member has in his possession one or more letters which are a strange mingling of the pathetic and the ludicrous. A Texas member has received one which outdoes Artemus Ward and Josh Billings, though all the humor in it is unintentional. After a frantic appeal for a reduction of the tariff on everything except wool, of which the writer is a producer, and for $50 per capita of silver and paper money, the constituent states that his neighborhood will vote as usual, as there are no Republicans in it, and concludes with this inquiry, "What is Cleveland a-goin to do with that man Breckinridge?"

A Convert to Readism.
Such letters or something else, probably sheer disgust at their own helplessness, has stirred up the majority members to a vigorous effort, and some of the most interesting scenes of this session have occurred in the discussions of the new rule proposed. Mr. Springer repeats, with some indignation, the statement that the bill proves him a convert to Tom Readism. Fourteen years ago, as he points out, he advocated a proposition almost identical with this one, which was then presented by Mr. Randolph Tucker and amended by Mr. Hunt, both of Virginia, that his bill was delivered by Mr. Reed in opposition to the Tucker rule. In the course of it he said: "A majority of the members present and participating in the deliberations of the house is the constitutional idea of a quorum. It is not the visible presence of the members, but their judgments and votes, that the constitution calls for." That he has made several very able speeches in direct contradiction to that doctrine is a fact of general knowledge, and is his happy explanation on the ground of increasing experience and wisdom.

The Wilson Bill.
A western Democrat says: "When such a seasoned veteran as old Bill Holman gives it up and acknowledges defeat long before the election, the political weather must be getting mighty squally, and old Bill says that if we don't get that tariff act through and get away from here by the middle of June our goose is cooked." It is a true statement, and just as Mr. Holman says, though he would probably compromise on the middle of July and take chances on the turn of public opinion. General Black, on the other hand, since his return from Illinois, is confident that the people will give plenty of time, that the Wilson bill will become a law in the form it now is in the senate, and that Illinois will give a good healthy majority in its favor. It is indeed cheering to have one healthy optimist on that side of the house, but so far as can yet be seen it isn't catching. Hon. Lyman Trumbull, for 18 years senator from Illinois and author of some of the most important reconstruction legislation, recently surprised his old friends by appearing in the capitol, a little leaner and more wrinkled than of old, but still remarkably vigorous for one of his years. On the same day the veteran Galusha A. Grtwh spoke on the proposed rules, showing his old time vigor.

WHAT ANGERS THE MINERS

Weaknesses of the Weekly Wages Law

Pointed Out by Mr. Little.
Attorney General Little this morning the weekly payment law should have a more severe penalty. He has given a decision on the law which affects the miners of the state. He says: "The penalty in the statute fails to make it efficient," and he then quotes the law bearing on the case, which provides for a 5 per cent payment per month when payment is defaulted. The decision continues:

"I understand these corporations are failing to comply with the terms of the statute. The only way to make this statute effectual is to make it a penal offense for its violation. If this statute had provided that any corporation through its agents failing to comply with the terms of the statute should be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, should be fined for a certain sum or imprisoned, this would in my judgment render the statute effectual. I see no good reason why attorneys will not readily take charge of these cases and prosecute them, for in every instance they can receive a reasonable fee from the corporation failing to pay the miners their weekly wages."

"This law is about the same as the law which concerns railroad corporations, which provides that where stock is killed and the company refuses to pay, that the owner of the stock may recover full value therefor and compel the railroad company to pay his attorney a reasonable compensation for the prosecution of the case. I know in this class of cases persons who have stock killed by railroads have no trouble in employing lawyers who are willing to take chances on getting their fee from the corporation, and I am inclined to think that the lawyers will do the same thing for the miners."

Complaint was also made that the men themselves did the blasting. Gen. Little says that such a rule is contrary to the statute, as the law requires that these shots shall not be fired until after all miners and other employees working therein have been hoisted out of the mine. And it also provides that no miner shall fire any shot, the law evidently intending that the shot firers should be a different set of persons than the miners. Any other construction placed upon these two sections would entirely abrogate the purpose for which the law was enacted, believe it is in violation of the law to permit the miners to do their own firing. It is the intention of the law that all the miners and employees working in the mines shall be hoisted out of the mines and then the persons employed as shot firers shall proceed to do their duty assigned to them."

PAUL REVERE'S RIDE.

He Rides It Again—Celebration of the Battle of Lexington.

LEXINGTON, Mass., April 19.—This historic town is in gala attire today. It is the anniversary of the battle of Lexington, and under the new law the anniversary this year and forever afterwards will be observed as a public holiday. The booming of cannon and the ringing of church bells aroused the citizens at an early hour, and after a hasty breakfast hundreds of them followed a drum corps over the route taken by the British 119 years ago.

An enthusiastic reception was accorded Governor Greenhalge, ex-Governor George B. Robinson, and a large party of other distinguished men that arrived shortly after ten o'clock. Headed by a band and under escort of over a thousand citizens, the party was taken to the Hancock Congregational church, where the formal exercises were at once inaugurated with prayer and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner. Hon. A. S. Parsons welcomed the visitors in behalf of the citizens, the Historical Society and delivered an address upon the famous battle. Other speeches were made by the governor, ex-Governor Robinson, the mayor and several divines, and after a reception they were entertained at a banquet.

Paul Revere's Ride.
A unique celebration of the new holiday (April 19) was arranged by the towns of Medford, Arlington and Lexington, in the shape of a reproduction of the ride of Paul Revere. It took place last night and adhered as closely to historical accounts as consistency with picturesque effect. A horseman rode from Medford to Lexington attired in the costume of a century ago, and did his best to arouse the inmates of every house on the route.

A unique celebration of the new holiday (April 19) was arranged by the towns of Medford, Arlington and Lexington, in the shape of a reproduction of the ride of Paul Revere. It took place last night and adhered as closely to historical accounts as consistency with picturesque effect. A horseman rode from Medford to Lexington attired in the costume of a century ago, and did his best to arouse the inmates of every house on the route.

Inasmuch as Medford was the first place at which Revere really aroused the patriots, it was deemed advisable not to begin the ride from Charleston. The modern Paul Revere started at a point just outside of Medford, and riding in, carried the alarm to the old royal house, where the people were waiting all ready to be aroused. From this point the signals were given for the beginning of the celebration. Along the route illuminations and fireworks lit up the road to Arlington, where Cooper's tavern was alarmed. Salutes were fired.

From Arlington to Lexington the road was for the most part lonely and there was but little celebration, but in Lexington an enthusiastic crowd welcomed the rider. The ride closed at the old Hancock house, on the Bedford road, and as a fitting ending the scene of 119 years ago was reproduced—the challenge and caution of the sentry and the rousing of the house. A young lady of Lexington enacted the part of Dorothy Quincy.

NEWS OF KANSAS.

A Distinguished Party of U. S. Senators at Wichita.

Teller, Platt and Roach Visited the Indians.

OTHER STATE NEWS.

Woman's Presbyterian Board of Missions at Salina.

WICHITA, April 19.—Three prominent United States senators and two private secretaries have been in the city, coming from the Indian Territory. Two weeks ago Senators H. M. Teller of Colorado, Senator O. H. Platt of Connecticut, Senator W. N. R. R. of North Dakota, and their secretaries, F. S. Bright of Indiana, assistant sergeant at arms, and C. G. Winslow of Colorado, went down into the territory over the M. K. & T. railroad.

"Yes, we have spent two weeks in the territory," said Senator Teller to a Beacon reporter.

"I suppose you were there to see about the rights of the Indians and to determine whether it should all be open to settlement."

"We were sent there as a senate commission," said the Colorado senator, "to inquire into the rights of these Indians. To see how they lived; find out their political methods and determine about their courts and then report to the senate. I think their courts need the most urgent attention."

"By that I suppose you mean that the United States should control these courts?"

"Not exactly," was the reply. "The federal courts already prevail to a certain degree. There are about 300,000 whites in the territory and they are tried by their own courts. There are also 70,000 Indians, the five civilized tribes having tribunals of their own."

"The commission has not yet made any definite programme to be followed?"

"No, we have not. We have gathered data that will be compiled into a report later on. This is not my first visit to this country by any means, but my colleagues have never been there before and they were interested in everything they saw."

THE MCPHERSON CYCLONE.

An Account in Detail of the Damage Done Houses and People.

MCPHERSON, April 19.—The results of the tornado which passed over this place night before last are just being fully found out.

The first house in the city limits damaged was that of T. M. Wallace. It was thrown off the foundation and one end wrenched out of shape. The next was the one occupied by Joseph Stephens and his family. It was lifted off the foundation and torn to pieces, leaving the occupants lying on the ground, the floor having been blown over them. Mr. Stephens' mother was struck by a piece of furniture and injured quite seriously.

The residence of C. Q. Drake, about two miles north of town was struck and torn to pieces, value about six hundred dollars. His windmill was destroyed and the iron top was carried a half mile away. Mrs. Drake and daughter were both injured. Mrs. Drake perhaps seriously.

A windmill belonging to Oliver Matthews was blown over and the outbuilding on the place of H. H. Gayer. The barn of James Horn, south of town was blown over and some apple trees torn completely out of the ground. The barn of James Yowell was damaged.

The total loss of property as far as reported would be about $3,000.

PRESBYTERIAN MISSIONS.

Woman's Board of the Southwest in Session at Salina.

SALINA, April 19.—The meeting of the Woman's Presbyterian board of missions is drawing large audiences to its interesting sessions.

The exercises today began at 9:30 with a half hour of devotional service led by Mrs. E. W. Tweeddale, of Topeka.

At 10 o'clock Mrs. D. B. Wells, Fort Wayne, Ind., spoke on "Missionary Biology." The subject of "Problems" was handled by Mrs. C. K. Hume, Caldwell, Kans. At 11:20 Mrs. W. P. Chalfant, China, delivered an address.

In the afternoon Miss Ellen C. Parsons, New York, conducted the devotional exercises.

Then Mrs. Meade C. Williams, St. Louis, gave a "Survey of the Foreign Field." The "Closing Words" were spoken by Mrs. L. D. Hopkins, Sedalia, Mo. And with prayer and benediction the meeting of the board closed but not the meetings of the day.

The night at 7:30 there will be a "Young People's Rally." The address will be delivered by Mr. S. L. Mershon, president of the C. E. Institute, Chicago. The subject of his lecture will be "World Wide Endeavor."

To Organize Colored A. P. A. Societies.

LEAVENWORTH, April 19.—It was stated today on trustworthy authority that while in Kansas City, Kas., is in Leavenworth for the purpose of organizing colored A. P. A. societies, such societies to be separate from those whose members are white. It was stated further that a meeting of colored people with this object in view was held Monday night and that certain prominent colored men got wind of the gathering and frustrated it.

Killed a Big Pelican.

HUTCHINSON, April 19.—Chas. Bacon of Ellinwood killed a pelican which measured 8 feet 3 1/4 inches from the tip of one wing to the tip of the other; 5 feet 7 inches from the tip of the tail to the end of the bill; bill 1 foot 4 inches in length, and under the bill was a pouch that would hold three gallons of water. Old hunters say that it was the largest bird of its species ever killed in this country.

ROYALTY IS LINKED.

Marriage of the Grand Children of Queen Victoria at Coburg.

Coburg, April 19.—The marriage of the grand-children of Queen Victoria, the Princess Victoria Melita of Saxe-Coburg and Edinburgh, and the Duke Ernest Louis of Hesse, was solemnized today in the chapel attached to the imperial palace at Coburg. The bride is the offspring of the union of the queen's second son, the duke of Edinburgh with the Princess Marie, of Russia, while the groom is the son of the union of the late Princess Alice, first daughter of the queen to Louis IV, grand duke of Hesse. The wedding is splendid for the royal city. The city is packed with royal and imperial guests, foreign visitors and German sight-seers. Every building is decorated in some manner, and prominent buildings are buried beneath decorations of all descriptions.

In the wedding procession Emperor William escorted the Duchess of Coburg and ex-Empress Frederic followed alone. The Prince of Wales and the Czarowitz came next, walking together. The bridegroom entered with his supporters, his uncle, Prince Henry of Hesse, and his brother-in-law, Prince Henry of Prussia. The bride came in last, supported by her father and brother and accompanied by her sisters.

The distinguished assemblage, ladies in court toilets, sparkling with jewels, their bright dresses contrasting beautifully with the gorgeous uniforms of the male portion of the guests, the elaborate floral decorations, the grandeur of the old chapel and the natural solemnity of the surroundings, formed a magnificent tout ensemble which has not often been equalled of recent years in any country in the world.

The bridal costume was of white corded silk, decollete, with immense puffed sleeves, and elaborately trimmed with historic lace. The texture of the tulle veil was almost entirely shrouded with orange blossoms. At the wedding breakfast which followed the ceremony, Queen Victoria proposed the health of the newly wedded couple.

The young couple left this afternoon for the Chateau of Rosenau, the birthplace of Prince Albert, Queen Victoria's husband. Tomorrow they will go to Kranichstein, the Grand Duke's shooting seat, and on Saturday they will enter Darmstadt in state.

HE CAN NOT LIVE.

Mr. C. F. Kendall Slowly Sinking and Is Given Up.

There was a change very much for the worse in the condition of C. F. Kendall today.

Mrs. Alexander and Hogeboom have been called in consultation, but express no hope. Mr. C. F. Kendall, the attending physician, has held for some days that Mr. Kendall would recover, but he now says that it is only a question of a very short time till he must succumb to the disease. Advanced blood poisoning has set in.

Mr. Kendall, of Denver, a brother of the sick man, has arrived and has resisted the disease in a remarkable manner.

In Court Over Pasture.

A. W. Moore of Lowman Hill is being tried in Justice Chesney's court this afternoon charged with wrongfully depriving a neighbor named Shumway of a pasture.

They had a dispute regarding the right of Shumway to use a lot on Buchanan street near Twelfth for pasturing purposes.

A large number of neighbors who witnessed the row and made a great deal of noise. Mr. Moore is a prominent resident of Lowman Hill and a member of the Methodist church.
